MINOR MENTION.

Additional local on seventh page. New spring goods just received at J. Reiter's, the tailor, 310 Broadway.

The new Masonic temple will be ready for occupancy sometime during April.

The new bridge across the creek at North Madison street is now to be built.

A heavy Hall safe was yesterday placed in Mitchell's jewelry store. It weighed four tons.

Still another is named as the coming chief of police. It is George B. Drake, a well-known citizen.

Council Bluffs is to have two polo clubs. They are now being organized, and soon the fun will start.

Regular meeting of Fidelity Council No. 156, R. A., this (Friday) evening. Important business to transact.

Arrangements are being made for a masquerade at the roller skating rink on Thursday evening of next week.

Mrs. Tracy, who lives near the corner of Eighth street and Eighth avenue, had her clothes line stripped by thieves Wednesday night.

Messrs. Beckman & Co. will occupy the building 525 Main street on April 1, their present quarters not being sufficiently large for their increasing business.

The revival efforts have not made much of a change in the reading of the people. In February there were 809 works of fiction drawn out, and 17 on theology.

The Presbyterian social will be held this evening at the residence of Mrs. B. S. Terwilliger, who will be assisted in entertaining by Mrs. F. Hill, Mrs. Phil. Armour and Mrs. I. Miller.

Nate Williams has bought the old city building and Bluff City engine house for $350, and is to remove them within sixty days, so that Glen avenue will then be widened out at that point.

C. Haldane, of Carroll, who has been engaged in the practice of law there, and who has connected himself with Wright & Baldwin, of this city, is given a very pleasing "send-off" by the Carroll Herald.

George Maurer died yesterday of consumption, aged 24 years. The remains will be taken to his old home in Warsaw, Ill., this evening, and will be accompanied by his father and William Maloney.

Those who want service pipes put in should leave their orders at the water works company's office before next Monday to get advantage of the extraordinary offer made in another column. The saving by thus acting promptly is a large one.

As soon as the case now on trial is finished in the circuit court, which will probably be this morning, there will be a general call of the calendar—the last call of the term. The attorneys will do well, therefore, to be on their taps to-day.

Do not forget that E. C. Briggs is delivering his doctrinal discourses in the Saint's chapel, on Pierce street. Subject, "The Kingdom of God." All persons would do well to hear Elder Briggs on so important a subject. Service this evening at 7:30.

Birdie Bliss and Miss Nellie Fuller are to be at the roller skating rink this evening. They are, indeed, wonders on wheels, he being the champion boy skater and she the champion girl. He is but nine years of age and she only eleven, and either furnishes a charming entertainment while both together double the attraction.

It would be well for property owners on such streets as the city proposes paving to make application for service pipe to the water company before next Monday, to secure the reduced rates as per their advertisement in another column. In fact, every one desiring to secure a supply of water from the company would save money by making their application now.

The gathering at the opera house last evening to hear Alexander Sullivan, president of the Irish National league was not a large one. Mr. Sullivan spoke for about an hour and a half and Rev. Mr. Mackay, Colonel Sapp and Rev. Father Clark of Red Oak, after the meeting had adjourned steps were taken to form a local branch of the league in this city. Quite a number of names for membership was handed in to M. G. Griffin who was elected temporary secretary of the organization.

Resolutions of Respect. The following resolutions have been prepared by the committee appointed for that purpose:

WHEREAS, Our highly esteemed and beloved brother, Robert S. Cole, who had for many years been known as a faithful Odd Fellow, a consistent Christian, a useful member of society, an exemplary head of a large family, and for the last five years a worthy member of this lodge, departed this life, at his residence in this city, on the morning of the 25th of Feb. 1884, in the sixty-fifth year of his age, therefore,

Resolved, That the members of this lodge do most solemnly mourn the death of our departed brother, and while we have united this day in committing his lifeless body to its last resting place, it becomes us all with God's assistance to strive to emulate his virtues, and follow the noble example of a useful and blameless life which he has left to us.

Resolved, That we extend our sincere sympathy and condolence to the immediate family and relatives of our deceased brother in the great loss they have sustained in his death.

Resolved, That as a further mark of our respect for our deceased brother, our lodge room be draped in mourning in the usual manner for thirty days.

Resolved, That these resolutions be entered at length on our minutes and published in the city papers, and that a copy, signed by our officers and attested by our seal, be forwarded to the surviving widow of the deceased.

Respectfully Submitted, D. G. BLOOMER, G. F. SAPP, W. G. OLIVER, Committee.

WALLOPING THE WABASH. Heavy Damages Awarded For Discrimination Against a Shipper. A Verdict For Nearly $60,000. The case of N. J. Bond against the Wabash railway, which has been on trial in the circuit court for several days, came to a close yesterday afternoon, the jury after being out about three hours, returning a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $5,201.50, which with the attorney fees and costs will make the bill foot up to over $60,000.

The case is one which is of interest to all shippers, and while it is supposed, of course, that the railway company will take an appeal, yet it is predicted that the appeal will not result very favorably to the company. The facts of the case are about as follows:

N. J. Bond in December 1880 sold 10,000 bushels corn for December delivery on board cars at Mineola, Iowa. The railroad refusing him cars to ship in he procured an extension of the sale to February 1881 and sold 10,000 bushels more for February delivery, and failing to get cars from the Wabash road to ship in during that month claimed damages in the sum of $307.50.

In April 1881 he shipped four cars of corn from Council Bluffs to Toledo, Ohio, which were side-tracked at Mineola, and allowed to stand there until the corn heated and spoiled. On this he claimed damages to the amount of $500.

Again, in December, 1881, he applied for cars to ship out 8,000 bushels of corn, cribbed at Mineola, and the company refusing to furnish him empty cars to ship in he procured empty K. C. cars and tendered them to the Wabash company to ship in, which they refused to haul for the purpose of removing the corn, damaging him in the sum of $1,100, on which triple damages were claimed amounting to $3,300; and again in February, 1882, they again refused to transport empty K. C. cars for the purpose of moving corn from Mineola, in which he was damaged to the amount $176, on which triple damages were allowed amounting to $528. The total amount on the four counts amounting to $5,201.50.

The case was first commenced before the board of railroad commissioners of the state of Iowa, who decided that the railroad company had discriminated on all four counts mentioned, and had violated the law which imposes a penalty of triple the amount of actual damage. The railroad company denied having discriminated and having refused to furnish cars, and that the empty cars of the K. C. railroad had been tendered them. They also claimed that the four cars of corn that was proven to have been side-tracked and detained nearly a month, while other freight and corn was being transported past Mineola where they were sidetracked and standing, had not been unnecessarily detained, and offered as an excuse the bad condition of their track a portion of the time, and also pleaded the statute of limitation, and as a consequence the demand for triple damages was abandoned.

In two counts, which reduced the damages to the actual damages sustained, Sapp & Pusey appeared for plaintiff and D. H. Solomon for the defendant.

HOME AGAIN. Tim Nagle, Being Pardon Out. Writes His Council Bluffs Friends.

The efforts made by C. Paul and others to get Tim Nagle pardoned out of the Wisconsin penitentiary have succeeded, and Tim, from his home in Milwaukee, writes a personal letter to Mr. Paul, the following portions of which will be read with interest:

MILWAUKEE, March 3, 1884. DEAR FRIEND:—I wish to pen you a few lines to let you know that I am home again, Governor Ruak having pardoned me. I must say to you and your friends that I am very thankful to them, and also yourself and your wife, for your kindness and interest in my behalf, and if God spares me I will go down and see you in sixty days or so. I feel like a new man since I came home. I get all I want to eat now, and when arrived home there was about 1,000 people at the depot to meet me. It seems every body here was in favor of my release. The warden of the prison sent a fine letter to Governor Ruak in my behalf, now intend to be a different man, and will never drink another drop of liquor. There is a job for me on the road when I feel able to go to work. I will be down before long to see that good little Myrtle. She is saved, and I am glad that such a good man has got her in charge.

Therefore, TIM NAGLE, "Home Again."
